

Bike Riders!

Whatever your age or how much you ride, your safety matters.

Most of us, whether in a car or on a bike, agree that we all share a responsibility for the safety of ourselves and others on our roads. When riding, you help make the road safer for yourself and others with these safety practices:

Wear a Helmet

Be Visible

Be Predictable

Stay Focused

Wear a Helmet

Helmets reduce serious head and brain injuries. Find a helmet that's comfortable and adjust it so that it fits - you've got it right when it's snug, level on your head, and doesn't rock side to side.

Be Visible

Being highly visible helps drivers see you sooner, giving them more time to respond. Headlights, tail lights, bright clothing and reflective gear make it easier for others to spot bike riders.

Be Predictable

Following traffic laws and using hand signals lets drivers know where you're headed.

Stop

Stay Focused

Don't let your phone, your cycling technology, or your ear buds take your attention away from your riding. When you're alert and focused on what's around you, you're a safer rider.
